ALTITUDES OF VARIOUS TOWNS IN KENTUCKY

The recent announcement of the United States Geological Survey that Big Black Mountain, in Harlan county, near the Tennessee line, is the highest peak in the State, reveals the fact that with its 4,100 feet, it is more than twice as high as any other mountain peak in Kentucky, according to the best available information.

Frazier Knob, with 1,540 feet altitude, is next, although Brushby is only five feet less in height. Suthen Knob, 1,515 feet high, is the only other peak with an altitude of 1,500 feet or more.

All of Kentucky's principal cities and larger towns are less than 1,000 feet above sea level, the records show. Danville at 955 feet and Lexington, with 948 feet, are the highest, although Richmond, 926 feet, and Versailles, 919 feet, both are over 900 feet high.

The altitude of other cities are Paris, 826; Frankfort, 560; Newport, 515; Louisville, 484; Bowling Green, 468; Owensboro, 444; and Paducah, 341.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a tonic and blood purifier, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. All druggists. TOBACCO CROP LIKELY TO BE SHORT

The intense heat and long drouth has cut down very materially estimates of the tobacco crop for the year. In some counties the yield will not be much over a fourth and in others a fifth of the yield of 1920. The success of the burley growers in organizing under the Sapiro plan and the cutting out of so much of the yield by the weather, in addition to the reduction in acreage which almost every tobacco grower made at the beginning of the season, would indicate to the average observer that prices for burley tobacco this year would be considerably above those of last year.

It has been a hard year for the farmer generally. With high-priced land producing low-priced products, many have felt the sting of financial loss, but if the rains come soon and are general, and if improved demand abroad ends, as it is bound to, in a revival in business, the farmer will yet come into his own.

The Kentucky corn crop will be large. While there will be no fruit, the yield of other crops will be larger, always providing there is rain, and the farmer may comfort himself with the thought that "it might have been worse." With his forces organized, he can at least demand and obtain a fair price for his tobacco and there seems no little doubt that he will do so.

JUDGE SAYS AUTO LAWS DEFECTIVE

The decision of Judge Fields, of Louisville, that there is no means of putting a speeder in jail, because the new automobile law, which displaces preceding ones, does not carry a jail sentence, discovers a defect in the statute.

It is well known that fine speeders does not deter rich motorists from violating the speed laws. When fines alone are feared the class owning the most powerful and the most dangerous cars may drive at speed dangerous to traffic, without fear of consequences.

It is conceded that if there is a means of putting down reckless driving it is by rigid enforcement of speed laws carrying jail sentences. It is within the power of the next Legislature to amend the present law so that speeders may be sent to jail, and such amendment should be adopted.

LIVELY LONDON LAUGHS

("Topics of The Day" Films)
As English speaking people we all can read and understand newspapers and magazines published in London. Of course, Londoners who peruse their newspapers at the House of Parliament, on London Bridge, or near Lord Nelson Monument on Trafalgar Square, enjoy the English humor. But, American audiences who see London laughs in "Topics of The Day" films also find them good entertainment. Perhaps some of our readers think that British jokes may lack some of the kick found in the Yankee brand of funniment. We feel sure that the humor quoted below smacks of old Bond Street flavor.

Mistress—"May, why didn't you bring on the finger-bowls? Didn't the lady you last worked for have them?"

Maid—"No mum. Her friends always washed before they came to dinner."—London (Eng.) Tit Bits.

A Lover—"I wish you'd find out how I stand with your father."

His Lass—"Oh! Why?"

A Lover—"He gave me a tip on the Stock Exchange to-night."—London (Eng.) Mail.

"Dad, what's a social scale?"
"Well, generally speaking, old man, it's a place where money is weighed."—London (Eng.) By-stander.

Fred—"Did you hear of the awful fright Frank got on his wedding-day?"—London (Eng.) Blighty.

Jack—"Yes, I was at the church. I saw her!"—London (Eng.) Blighty.

"She says she is going to give singing lessons."

"She'll have to. Nobody'll ever pay her for them."—London (Eng.) Answers.

Col. Borer—"Hello, Jones, where've you been?"

Jones—"To see my people."

Col. Borer—"Ah! And how did you find them?"

Jones—"Quite easily—knew where they lived."—London (Eng.) Telegram.

First Lady—"Since my husband has taken up this idea of adopting French towns, I've not seen much of him."

Second Lady—"But how interesting! What town has he adopted?"
Paris?—London (Eng.) Passing Show.

Customer—"I say, do you ever play anything by request?"

Delighted Musician—"Certainly, sir."

Customer—"Then I wonder if you'd be so good as to play a game of dominoes until I've finished my lunch?"—London (Eng.) Punch.

A TOUGH PROPOSITION

Getting out a newspaper or monthly publication is no picnic. If we print jokes, folks say we're silly—if we don't they say they are too serious. If we publish original matter they say we lack variety—if we publish things from other papers, they say we are too lazy to write.

If we don't go to church we are heathens—if we do we are hypocrites. If we stay at the office we ought to be out hustling for news—if we hustle for news we are not attending to business at the office. If we wear old clothes we are sloven—if we wear new clothes they are not paid for. What the thunderation is a poor editor to do anyhow? Like as not some one will say we swiped this from an exchange. So we did!

In 1919 there were 200,000 farm lighting plants in use. Now, it is said, there are 340,000.
